OPENING OF THE BOYS DEPARTMENT

Of the Young Men's Christian Association Occurred Last Night and Was a Great Success, Many Being Present.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES WERE DELIVERED AND A MOST EXCELLENT MUSICAL PROGRAM RENDERED—BASKET BALL GAME WAS PLAYED AFTERWARDS.

The formal opening of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. last night was a great success. Many parents and others were present to enjoy the evening with the boys.

A short program of addresses and musical numbers was rendered. Mr. W. K. Hyer, president of the association, presided.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Mr. Bicknell. Mr. Bicknell is a lover of boys and naturally his address appealed to them and was enjoyed by the older people as well.

John Lewis, one of the members of the boys' department, made a short and instructive talk on "The Boy's Department." He spoke of what the boys of other places were doing in this work and called upon all his associates to join in making the junior department of the Y. M. C. A. a power in the community. He said that Pensacola contains about 300 boys between the ages of 14 and 18 years of age, and that every one of these boys ought to become members of the association. He suggested that an organized effort among the boys be made to accomplish this result.

Raymond Barrow, another of the boys, spoke of the benefits the employed boys derive from the boys' department. His talk was listened to with the closest attention and his remarks met with approval.

These boys who were on the program deserve the greatest credit for their efforts for it is by no means an easy matter for a boy to address such a large audience.

Miss White's reading and the vocal solos by Miss Gladden and Master Bertram Coleman and musical numbers by the Messrs. Diaz were greatly enjoyed.

The basket ball game at the close of the exercises, while it was enjoyed by the players and the spectators, did not arouse quite the enthusiasm that such contests usually arouse. This may be accounted for by the fact that the boys had no practice and by the fact that it is impossible to play a good game of basket ball without screens for the goals, which so far have not been provided. The two teams were as follows:

Avery... C... Yates
Lewis, (Capt)... R. F... Sublette
Yonker... F... Engle
R. White... R. G... H. White
Roberts... L. G... (Capt) Hannah

The building is now open to the boys whose applications have been sent in. The hours for boys from 14 to 16 are from noon to six o'clock; for boys from 16 to 18 and all employed boys from 7:00 till nine o'clock. All are entitled to the privileges of association from the time their applications are made.

The Sale of Silks in Burma.

The wooden floor of the stalls is raised two or three feet, so that the buyer, standing on the ground, is about on a level with the seller, sitting in the stall. The stall will be about 8 by 10 feet, and each has at the back a strong lockup cupboard or wardrobe, where the wares are shut at night, but in the day they will be taken out and arranged daintily about the girl seller. Home-made silks are the staple—silks in checks of pink and white, of yellow and orange, of indigo and dark red. Some are embroidered in silk, in silver or in gold. Some are plain. All are thick and rich. None is glazed, and none is gaudy. There will also be silks from Bangkok, which are of two colors—purple shot with red and orange shot with red, both very beautiful. All the silks are woven the size of the dress—for men about twenty-eight feet long and twenty inches broad and for women about five feet long and much broader. Thus there is no cutting off the piece. The anna, too, which are the bottom pieces for a woman's dress, are woven the proper size. They will probably, too, be piles of snowy cambric jackets and gauzy silk handkerchiefs, but often these are sold at separate stalls. Blackwood's Magazine.

A Suggestive Sermon.

The Rev. Dr. Howard, chaplain to Princess Augusta, was so fond of good living that he ran into debt with many of the tradesmen in his parish. It was in their special interests that he one day preached from the text, "Have patience, and I will pay you all." He spoke at great length on the virtues of patience and then proceeded, "I now come to the second part of my discourse, which is, 'and I will pay you all,' but that I shall defer to a future occasion."—London Standard.

Don't think that your knowledge of wonder gems is complete till you have seen an "alexandrite," green by day and red by night. The Tearless Battle.

The Tearless battle was fought between the Spartans on one side and the Arcadians and Argives on the other 367 B. C. Not a Spartan fell in the engagement, and so, Plutarch says, the Lacedaemonians called it the Tearless battle.

A WAGNER ANECDOTE.

How He Showed His Joy at a "Parsifal" Rehearsal.

The following anecdote of Wagner is told by Alfred Reisenauer, the pianist, who, as a pupil of Liszt, knew the composer of "Parsifal" personally.

"Wagner was always more or less self-conscious," says Reisenauer, "and only at rare intervals did his friends see him in moods that could be called anything but premeditated. In Balreuth I saw him in a highly characteristic situation, and I never shall forget it. It was at a rehearsal of 'Parsifal.' The garden scene had just been admirably sung and danced, whereupon Wagner, in his exuberant joy, hugged and kissed the artists, and then, quite beside himself, got down on all fours and barked like a dog, concluding his exhibition by throwing his legs in the air and balancing himself on his head.

"At this interesting moment Liszt and several of his pupils, including myself, walked on the stage. Quick as a flash, Liszt, who always played the role of Wagner's self-constituted defender, said grimly, 'Well, if that's a pose, it's the hardest one in the world to hold, by thunder!' For the sake of the master we tried to restrain our mirth, but the effort was not wholly successful. I firmly believe, however, that Wagner himself was secretly pleased at the sensation for which he was responsible."—Harper's Weekly.

EFFECT OF IMAGINATION.

Man Bitten by Harmless Snake Believed He Was Dying.

An English physician in India once told of an extraordinary case of the effect of imagination on the physical system. He says:

"Some time ago on visiting the hospital one morning I was told that a man had been admitted during the night suffering from a snake bite and that he was very low. I found him in a state of severe prostration; he was hardly able to speak and seemed to be in a state of great depression. He and his friends said that during the night in going into his hut a snake bit him on the foot; that he was much alarmed and rapidly passed into a state of insensibility, when they brought him to the hospital. They and he considered that he was dying and evidently regarded his condition as hopeless.

"On being asked for a description of the snake, they said they had caught it and brought it with them in a bottle. The bottle was produced, and the snake turned out to be a small, innocent lycoodon. It was alive, though somewhat injured by the treatment it had received.

"On explaining to the man and his friends that it was harmless, and with some difficulty making them believe it, the symptoms of poisoning rapidly disappeared, and he left the hospital as well as he ever was in his life in a few hours."

An English Mantrap.

A mantrap has been found in Alford, Lincolnshire, England, which shows the barbarity of a century or so ago. It is probably the largest mantrap in existence. It is seventy-six inches in length, and its jaws, with teeth protruding two inches, will open fully two feet two inches by eighteen inches. Old time landladies who chose to insist upon their rights in their entirety, as they often did, were at liberty to plant these barbarous engines about in the undergrowth of their inclosed land for the benefit of any trespasser or possible poacher who might chance to set foot near them. Their use was abolished by law in 1827.

A Margate Dash.

"How did the manager get all those women out of that burning theater so quickly?"

"He went on the stage and announced that a man down at the entrance was giving away samples of baking powder."

MEETING OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Question of Securing Fleet Was Discussed, and Committee Will Be Sent to Washington.

An interesting meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday in the rooms of that body, President Stillman presiding.

Several matters were discussed, chief among which was the information received that the preliminary itinerary of the North Atlantic fleet had been made up and that Pensacola had been omitted as the point where the fleet would rendezvous. A committee composed of prominent citizens was appointed to use all endeavors to secure a change in the itinerary, and it is expected that this committee will have to go to Washington to call upon the naval officials. Secretary Jones was appointed a committee of one to call upon the business men of the city, especially those who are mostly benefited by the visit here of the vessels, and see if a fund sufficient to carry on this work cannot be secured, as it is very essential that a fund sufficiently large to defray all expenses be raised at once if the fleet is to be secured for this port.

The body passed resolutions concerning the Brownlow bill and the Littlefield bill, both of which are against the interests of the pilots. The senators and representatives from Florida were requested to vote against the passage of these measures.

A resolution was passed requesting Senator Mallory and Congressman Lamar to protest in congress against the destruction of Niagara Falls for commercial purposes.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the surgeon general of the Marine Hospital and Public Health service, and request that an assistant surgeon be appointed at this port, the office having been abolished some months since.

Five new applications for membership were received.

New Suits Filed.

The following new suits have been filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court:

Welles-Kahn Co. vs. J. I. Kelly & Co., damages $1,000; Blount & Blount, attorneys for plaintiffs.

Welles-Kahn Co. vs. J. I. Kelly & Co., damages $700; Blount & Blount, attorneys for plaintiffs.

A GRAPE CREAM OF TARTAR BAKING POWDER

It makes the most delicious and healthful hot breads, biscuit and cake

FREE FROM ALUM, LIME OR PHOSPHATIC ACID

Alum baking powders are unhealthful. Do not use them for raising food under any circumstances. So detrimental are alum baking powders considered, that in most foreign countries their sale is prohibited. In many States in this country the law compels alum powders to be branded to show that they contain this dangerous acid, while in the District of Columbia, Congress has prohibited the sale of all food that contains alum.

Alum baking powders are sold to consumers at from 10 cents a pound to 25 cents for 25 cents, or 25 cents a pound, and when not branded may generally be distinguished by their price.

The Journal's Daily Fashion Feature

FROCK FOR A THREE-YEAR-OLD.

The wash frock does service now-days the year around, where there is money in the plenty for the laundress; and it is usually the most serviceable and dainty of costumes where the amount of the laundry bill needs not be considered. Little half skirt forms are much liked in these wash frocks, and have the advantage of laundering easily. The one illustrated has a round yoke, with extending tabs on either side back and front, the whole edged with a ruffle of eyelet embroidery. The blouse portion has a double pleat back and front, the deep bounce is tucked, and the belt of the cloth attached to conceal the joining of skirt and body portion. The sleeves are plain bishop's, with a ruffle of embroidery in the narrow cuffband. Some mothers affect socks or half-stockings for the little one's indoor wear even in midwinter, but this is doubtful wisdom save with the hardest children.
